

Your Trust

“Fear, anxiety, confusion and despair, left me in a daze,” said Lynne. Lynne shares the rest of her journey here.

“The thought of chemotherapy, surgery and medications was overwhelming. I was determined to have some control and go as natural as possible while getting the treatment I needed. When I learned of the Hope Resource Center and the many programs, I felt relief and knew I wanted all the tools I could get my hands on. Megan provided so much support and valuable information, I felt confident that we were going to do this right. After surgery, I met Nancy (I call her my lingerie specialist). I felt awkward, broken and my self-esteem had gone out the window; but, Nancy’s encouragement helped me feel empowered and back in control. From aromatherapy to wigs at the Heart Gifts Boutique; the items, tips and tricks you would never imagine are available; before, during and after treatment. I am forever grateful to the team of compassionate, professional individuals at the Hope Resource Center. Angels...right here in Concord.”

Lynne Doyle resides in Canterbury, New Hampshire and is a 22-month cancer survivor!
